This is Monami's 1.8mm holder core that I've seen for the first time, but compared to the products behind it, it's just for preview prevention.

A Pori box you've never seen before..?

If you open the bottom of the box, you will see PILOT engraved in English on the bottom of the mechanical pencil case. But it doesn't look like the commonly known Pori.

This time, I opened the top of the box and found that the K mark was engraved on the top of each box.

Now it has revealed itself. There is a seal attached to each container. And the production year is 1981.. 🤖

The overall appearance is a cylinder that stores the core inside an angled rectangle. It consisted of two shapes

Strangely, the lead of the Milky Way mechanical pencil, a product from a company that will be released later, was of the same shape as the Pori.

However, the biggest problem is another product of this company...

This is Pilseung Industry's Wanggeomi sharp lead.

Uh... it's a little hard to see, but if you read the seal carefully...

It's 0.8 m/m...!

Is it the world's first or Korea's first... Anyway, 0.8mm has been confirmed along with Turkey's 0.6mm 🤖

The owner of the stationery store said that it disappeared after a while.

The only thing I heard was that my father tried it because he found it fascinating... I couldn't find it anywhere on Google, let alone Shayeon.

Why is one of them an ENGEL sharpie?

And the former mission of Dorco, which supplies razors to the military,

Dorco lead from Hanil Industries....

The problem is that this is the same mold as Pilsung Industrial Co.'s Wanggeomi mechanical pencil lead... and even the numbering engraving is the same....

If this is the case, what kind of company was Pilsung Industrial Company... 🤖

Treasure Island also had products from companies like Monami, Donga, and Sony(?).

I didn't post a post about my visit because I was too lazy to do it.

This time, I couldn't help but upload it...! 🤖
